troubled in the same way, and the matter which she vomited was like that which passed from him But at the last, one of the doctors, spying her tempering and blessing the juice of certain herbs tumbled her pot down and rated her from the chamber The Earl himself cried out in all his sickness that the doctors laboured in vain because he was certainly bewitched During this last illness the Bishop of Chestei and his chaplain, Mr Lee, were with him

iBth April LOPEZ EXECUTION POSTPONED

The execution of Lopez, Ferrara, and Tmoco, that was fixed for to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock is by the Queen's orders stayed, to the great discontent of the commissioners and the people who much expect it

i^rd April ST GEORGE'S DAY FOREIGN ORDERS

There is great press of the people at Court, though very few Knights of the Garter , the Lord Treasurer being unable to go m the procession because of his foot The Queen is reported to be very angry with Sir Anthony Shirley and Sir Nicholas Clifford for having accepted the Order of St Michael from the French King, first because they took it without her privity, and next for that they took the whole oath, one part whereof is to defend the Mass while they live

GIBBON'S ᶜ PRAISE OF A GOOD NAME '

Mr Charles Gibbon hath written The Prane of a Good Name in answer to certain slanders made against him, being a collection of apothegms, epigrams, and pithy sayings in praise of a good name, and of brief essays showing the reproach of an ill name

2C)th April LADY BRANCH BURIED

The Lady Helen Branch, wife first of John Minors, citizen and grocer of London, secondly of Sir John Branch, was buried, having died on the loth of the month in the ninetieth year of her life Her funerals were very honourably furnished, and accompanied by the Lord Mayor, many mourners, doctors, gentlemen, and kinsfolk, honourable ladies, servants and poor men In honour of these ceremonies, an Epicedium is printed, being a sequence of twelve sonnets describing her life, wherein the author mvoketh our living poets